New York Expects Walkout

NEW YORK (AP) — Network television musicians are playing again. Workers at state mental hospitals have returned to the wards, and Long Island Rail Road engineers are back on the track. A labor peace? Not yetnow utility workers are set to walk out.

New Yorkers, who have already weathered police and firemen slowdowns and teachers and sanitationmen's strikes in 1968, braced today for a Sunday walkout by 20,000 workers at the Consolidated Edison Co.

Charles F. Luce, Con Ed board chairman, told 9,000,000 customers Thursday to expect "less than normal service" if the walkout occurs and appealed to the public to limit electrical usage during peak demand hours from 4 p.m. to 9

Luce said 4,000 supervisors would attempt to provide "essential" gas and electrical service for an indefinite period. "We are confident we can operate the system," he said, but added. "It will be a challenge."

The workers, members of Local 1-2 of the AFL-CIO Utility Workers of America, surprised their leaders and Con Ed officials by rejecting a proposed two-year contract Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the commuting challenge for 90,000 daily riders on the Long Island Rail Road appeared ended. Line officials said they expected "full service" but warned of possible delays due to new timetables.

Wildcat strikes by trainmen and engineers snarled service for three days beginning Monday this week. Then holiday snafus caused the cancellation of 20 of 270 runs and delays on 70 more Thursday.

A spokesman attributed the new trouble to problems in getting the men and machinery matched up. "We just didn't get all the guys in the same place with all the equipment," he

The line now gets its first test of the new timetables-its first major schedule change in 20 years. The changes, which union members said would cost them overtime pay, blamed for the walkouts. Nonprofessional workers who struck four state mental hospitals, disrupting the lives of thousands of patients for more than a week, began returning to the wards Thursday

State officials said they would begin early next week to effect the return of 4,942 patients who had to be transferred to other institutions.

Supporters Of Wallace Laying Plans

ST. LOUIS (AP)-Backers of George C. Wallace's Missouri presidential campaign meet in Columbia Saturday to begin organizing a permanent American party in the state.

"We definitely intend to run candidates in 1970, from U.S. senator right on down the line, wherever we can find good men to run," said Floyd Kitchen of Maplewood, Wallace's state campaign manager.

Kitchen said the presidential electors pledged to Wallace became custodians of the Missouri American party after the election and will preside over its permanent organization.

He said the Saturday meeting will deal mostly with legal requirements for permanent status and preparations for a larger meeting at a later date.

Wallace received 11.4 per cent of the Missouri vote, more than enough to qualify the party for a spot on the state ballot in the Reports from Saigon have carried no mention of bombing attacks north of the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam.

A spokesman for Hanoi's delegation at the Paris peace talks asserted the American bombings had occurred for the third straight day Thursday.

"The United States' acts of war are in violation of national sovereignty and security of the Democratic Republic of (North) Vietnam," he said.

The spokesman charged that three F4 jets of the U.S. Air Force dropped explosives and fragmentation bombs on four villages and hamlets in the Province of Quang Binh. One of the villages attacked, he said, is more than 40 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

The United States has claimed the right to send planes, under armed escort, over North Vietnam for reconnaissance. It also has warned the North Vietnamese that U.S. authorities will not hesitate to defend Americans imperiled by hostile actions or to go to the rescue of the crews of downed aircraft.

The North Vietnamese have disputed these claimed Ameri-

Enemy Forces Pursued Near Cambodian Border

SAIGON (AP) - Helicopterborne U.S. Air Cavalrymen leapfrogged along the Cambodian border today in pursuit of enemy troops fleeing to their sanctuaries after fierce Thanksgiving Day fighting

U.S. headquarters said 25 enemy soldiers were killed in one battle during which helicopters and Air Force bombers sprayed the area with machine gun fire, rockets, bombs and cannons. No U.S. casualties were reported.

The new action raised to 288 the number of enemy troops killed in the last two days and to 426 the number of enemy slain since the first of the week in major fighting along the Cambodian border north of Saigon.

U.S. losses for the same period were 26 killed and 54 wounded. South Vietnam lost 10 dead and 20 wounded.

It was the heaviest fighting in the area since mid-September when a drive by the Communist command against the border provinces was beaten back.

The U.S. Command said constant pressure is being maintained on the 15,000 to 20,000 enemy troops believed deployed along the 100-mile stretch of Cambodian border.

Sparring that is expected to slow progress in the Paris peace talks for the next few weeks continued Thursday when North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front announced they would ignore the South Vietnamese delegation.

This further complicated the picture. South Vietnam considers the talks two-sided and said Wednesday it would address its remarks to North Vietnam and ignore the NLF

Explosion Hampers Shaft 'Evaluation'

MANNINGTON, W.Va. (AP) bility. All the information at this Another "major explosion" ripped through No. 9 today, spewing smoke and flame from the mine's Llewellyn portal near the area where 78 men have been trapped nine days.

The early-morning blast, the 16th since the initial explosion Nov. 20, sent flames and a column of white smoke spiraling above the entrance.

Officials directing efforts to promised a "very, very comprehensive evaluation" of the situation within the sprawling mine today.

Drillings made by boring through to the deep caverns below produced air samples showing high concentrations of deadly carbon monoxide and dangerous methane gas. Peter P. Ferretti, a vice president of Consolidation Coal Co., said the latest testings Thursday night were taken from an area where the men had been trained to go in case of disaster.

He described the testing area as a "very critical place." The carbon monoxide level was 50 times human capability while the methane concentraton was 26.4 per cent. He said there is danger of explosion when methane reaches a level of between 5 and 15 per cent.

Ferretti said "we will make some decision" after the evaluation today.

Ferretti, asked Thursday night if the drill sites showed the same deadly air samples would mean sealing the mine, replied: "I can't comment on that. This, of course, is a possi-time doesn't look good. It doesn't look encouraging.'

The mine normally draws air from one opening, through the tunnels and out another opening. When methane builds up, the officials said, the flow is reversed and air is drawn in from both ends. This feeds the fire which in turn ignites the methane and produces an explosion.

The 78 men were trapped Nov. 20 when a blast tore through the mine, owned by the Mountaineer Coal Co., a subsidiary of Consolidation. Twentyone other miners escaped.

Families and friends of the trapped men continued their waiting at a little church near the mine.

In Thanksgiving Day services, Dr. Melvin Risinger, a district superintendent for the United Methodist Church asked those attending services to "be thankful that God supports us in our time of grief.

As he spoke, two women carrying pies burst into the room. apparently unaware that services were in progress.

Dr. Risinger invited the women in and then said: "The other day I heard someone say, 'Why on earth is God doing this?'

"The answer is in these two women who came in with the pumpkin pies, or the volunteer policeman, his shoes muddy, directing traffic or the nurses who come here straight from their

Nun Demands A 'New Deal'

LONDON (AP) - A Carmelite nun accused the Roman Catholic Church today of antifeminine prejudice and demanded "a new deal."

What time we nuns get up in the morning, what time we eat, what we wear—all this is decided by men," said Sister Margar-et Rowe. "Surely nuns themselves are more qualified to handle these matters.

Earlier she wrote an article in the interdenominational newspaper New Christian in which she said.

"There was a time when all women were treated by their husbands the way nuns are still treated by bishops and male superiors.

Some nuns disagreed. Sister Jean Fletcher of the Sisters of Cenacle said: "I wonder if Sister Rowe has the full picture. Perhaps she does not come into contact with the outside world enough.

Women are being recognized as adults more and more by the Church, and I have always found men in the Church very cooperative.

observe the Festival of the first Sunday in Advent on this coming Sunday with a service at 10:30 a.m. The pastor, the Rev. Paul O. Doering, will speak on the subject of "The Advent of Our Lord.

"Why the World Is As It Is?" is the title of the morning message the Rev. J. Allan MacMullen will preach at Faith Baptist Church, this Sunday.

'Sightseers At the Cross," is the title of the evening service. Communion service will be held in the evening.

The Sedalia Democrat, Friday, November 29, 1968—3 Pastor's Comment

By The Rev. Orval Woolery

What is the church? Different individuals would give different answers. To one the church is a building at a given location, a building with spire and stained glass windows. To another, the church is a people gathered together to sing, to pray, and to hear a message from the Bible. Still another may see the church as a people of a certain persuasion regarding

That we may properly interpret the church, let us look at some of its functions. The church is God's way of acquainting men with himself. Before the coming of Jesus Christ, God used the Temple and the Synagogue as the means of making himself known. Then when Christ came, he established the church. The church may indeed involve buildings, people gathering together, and folk of certain persuasions, but the church is more than this.

The church is God ministering to people, fixing up ruined lives, binding up broken hearts, comforting the sorrowing, helping the weak. The church is God's means of helping people to achieve their maximum in life, to be their best in service to God and man.

The function of the church then may be summarized as worshiping, ministering, evangelizing, and educating. More simply, the church may be thought of as God reaching down, man reaching up, and both reaching out.

NLRB Says Discharge

Justified WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Labor Relations Board today disagreed with one of its trial examiners and dismissed a finding that the discharge of a frequently tardy employe at a Springfield, Mo., plant was discriminatory and in violation of labor law.

The case went to the board when the Grand Foundries, Inc. took exception to a trial examiner's ruling in August that discharge of the employe was discriminatory.

The board said the employe had been on the payroll of the company or that of one of its related companies 13 years and testimony was that the man developed a record of being chronically tardy or late in reporting for work in the morning.

The trial examiner had found that in the three-year period preceding discharge of the man the employe reported to work 'late 10 times in 1965, 56 times in 1966, and over 40 times" in 1967 before he was warned on Dec. 5 of that year. He was discharged 15 days later and testimony was that in the 11 working days he had been late three times. Being "late" was defined as unexcused tardiness of more than six minutes. Two unions were unsuccessful in representation elections held at the plants in 1986 and

The trial examiner had concluded after a hearing in Springfield that the company's "real motive for the discharge was the desire to remove from its plant an active and avowed union supporter." The examiner had ordered the company to restore the man to the payroll and to compensate him for loss of earnings.

The board said, contrary to the trial examiner's finding, that it could not agree that the employe had "actively participated in the campaigns of two different unions", that he was "actively or militantly" engaged in union activities, or that the company was motivated to discharge the man because he constituted a "contagious and dangerous source for continuous future agitation for the organization" of the plant.

Reminded Of Needs On Holiday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The traditional "thanks" of Thanksgiving Day, a holiday uniquely American among nations of the world, was tempered this year by scattered protests over those in need in a land of plenty.

While thousands of families sat down to turkey dinners with all the trimmings, 10 members of the War Resistors League fasted outside a fashionable Beverly Hills, Calif., restaurant charging that "Americans are gluttons while millions starve.'

During the annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade in Manhattan, featuring eight giant helium-filled balloons of cartoon characters, welfare protestors handed out leaflets to many of the 2.5 million spectators, at least half of them reading, "Thanks for nothing.

A spokesman said the protest was staged to show that "many thousands of poor children in this city and country will face empty plates today."

At Albany College, 10 students and an adviser ended a four-day fast Thursday aimed at calling attention to hunger. But thousands of the "havenots" also sat down to holiday dinners, thanks to social agencies and organizations such as the Salvation Army, which played host to 1,900 homeless or needy at centers it operates in Manhattan, Brooklyn, the Bronx and Staten Island in New York

Two churches, in Harlem and the Bedford Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn, served needy or aged neighbors in church halls. Symbolizing the holiday scene around the nation was the family gathering on the Texas ranch of President and Mrs. Johnson, celebrating with their daughters, grandchildren and friends.

Missing from the Johnson festive board-again typical of hundreds of homes across the land-were the Johnsons' sonsin-law. Airman 1.C. Patrick J. Nugent and Marine Maj. Charles S. Robb, both serving in Vietnam. The two young men were among 536,000 U.S. troops eating holiday dinners far from their native hearth.

Government records show Jolley wrote a letter in May of 1967 saying, "Yesterday, May 16, I renounced my United States citizenship, thus terminating all obligations to the United States.

When Jolley was questioned about whether he regrets abandoning his citizenship, the youth exchanged glances with his 21year-old wife, who accompanied him to Canada and replied:

"I guess we did what we thought we had to do at the time we did it . . . that doesn't mean we would do it again.'

Mrs. Jolley said, "The consequences have a lot to do with it" when she was asked whether she would favor taking the same steps again. "You might be tempted just to ride along," she said. Natural Gas Erupts From Under Town

MARSHALL, Mich. (AP) -Natural gas cracked through the ground, sending thunderous rumblings through Marshall, hurling water 20 feet into the air and forcing about 15 families to flee from their homes in a halfmile-square area early Thanksgiving Day.

Red tags were hung on the homes to show that they were dangerous and the families would not be permitted to return. Authorities said they did not know when the tags would be removed. The source of the highly volatile gas was unknown but geologists said it almost certainly came from underground pockets. Gas company workers said they could find no leaks in any

Water pressure in wells rose sharply. Swampland bubbled. A 20-foot section of paved street was torn up as a geyser of gaseous water erupted from the middle of the rubble. It was the second time in a month that mysterious underground gas pressure built up in Lower Michigan. Earlier, a seven-mile square area at Lee Township about 12 miles away in south central Michigan, was punctuated by the gas-and-water geysers.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) -A soldier in Vietnam placed this classified ad on Thanksgiving in the Birmingham News: "To Frances from Saigon:

'As we spend this 19th Thanksgiving Day of our marriage 10,000 miles apart, I wish the world to know what a wonderful wife and mother you are.

"Your husband. The GI did not sign his name. fired. It's instantaneous.

Mrs. Jolley, who asked that her first name not be used, plays an unusual role in the case. Jolley's attorney argues that since his client's wife is unquestionably a U.S. citizen, her husband is entitled to remain in this country as the husband of a U.S. citizen.

But the government argues that Jolly had no right whatsoever to return from Canada after giving up his citizenship specifically to avoid the draft.

Jolley said he has not actually received the order giving him 90 days to leave the country. He intends to consult his attorney and may appeal to the Board of Immigration Appeals in Washington and possibly to the federal courts after the order arrives.

Tito Slap At Czech Situation

By BORIS BOSKOVIC Associated Press Writer

JAJCE, Yugoslavia (AP) President Josip Broz Tito today voiced Yugoslavia's alarm over the "serious deterioration of the international situation" caused by the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia

Tito spoke to an assembly of prominent Yugoslav leaders gathered to celebrate the creation of the first government of Yugoslavia 25 years ago.

Reviewing the history of the second session of "the Anti-Fascist Council of the People's Liberation of Yugoslavia," Tito stressed that the partisan revolution in Yugoslavia during World War II did not copy "outside models. He thus made it clear Yugoslavia does not consider her revolution a replica of the Soviet one.

"Our peoples have made enormous sacrifices and spilled streams of blood to become masters of their fate, to be able to decide independently on the forms of their socio-economic development," said Tito.

'Yugoslavia views with alarm the serious deterioration in the international situation that has taken place, particularly of late." This was a reference to the invasion of Czechoslovakia, which Yugoslavia sharply de-

'It's especially disturbing that even today in international relations, the principles of sovereignty and integrity of countries are not respected," said Tito. "If these principles which include the fundamental right of each people to be master in its own country are not respected, new crises and trouble will arise, and there will be no stabilization of international condi-

Winning a Turkey Is Not Always a Blessing

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP) — One of the ordeals of life is the problem of getting rid of the remains of a turkey you win in the annual office Thanksgiving raffle.

For some reason unknown to man the prizes in these affairs are never reasonable-sized birds -say 10 to 12-pounders.

No, indeedy. They all suffer from gigantism, one of the curses of a myopic civilization which tends mistakenly to equate mere bulk with true quality. They weigh from 20 pounds on up, and are built like hulking feathered apes.

A man ceases to be a hero in his wife's eyes any day he lugs home a vast rubbery turkey he has won at the office. As he opens the door, full of pride but faint with exhaustion, she takes one look at the turkey slung over his bent back and yelps:

"What do you expect me to do with that—cook it or preserve it exchange. for the Smithsonian Institu-

'Now what are you hollering about?" he says. "aren't you glad I won us a free Thanksgiving dinner?"

Free? Getting a supposedly free turkey at Thanksgiving is like being given a sacred white elephant in Thailand. The initial cost is nothing. But the upkeep is everything.

By the time you surround the turkey with proper fixings and buy liquor and white wine for the free-loading friends you invite to share your bounty, it is necessary to take out a second mortgage on your home to foot the bill.

The next morning when you take a bleary look at the turkey it hardly seems dented. How can you get rid of it?

There are 1,012 recipes for serving leftover turkey, but what stomach can face turkey, in any of its disguises, for 1,012 consecutive days? You can't feed it to the cat, because the cat couldn't consume it in all her nine lifetimes. You can't give it to a poor relative, because no relative is so poor that he will accept a handme-down turkey. You can't bundle it up and send it to Britain, because the British are still angry at us for palming off on them all the mountains of powdered eggs we had left after World War II.

Of course, you could dig a hole in the back yard big enough to bury it in, but a hole that large would take three days of steady digging.

The best way, however, to get rid of a leftover turkey is to avoid having it in the first place. When they announce at the office you have won a turkey, you say:

'No, thank you. Tear up my ticket. I almost lost my happy home once by bringing home an office Thanksgiving turkey. Never again!"

Unequal School Setups

The nation may be shaken in the not-toodistant future by yet another judicial earthquake emanating from the Supreme Court:

A declaration that the public school systems of the states are unconstitutional.

More exactly that the traditional method of financing public schools through local taxes is a violation of the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment because it makes the quality of education which a child receives dependent on the status of the school district in which he lives.

Suits bearing on this issue are pending in Michigan, Illinois, Virginia and California. All have one basic contention in common, which is that a state has a responsibility to see that every child is given an equal educational opportunity, wherever he resides.

Such equality does not exist. There are rich school districts and poor, ghetto schools and suburban. This hardly needs to be proved by statistics, although there are plenty at hand.

According to Julian H. Levi, lawyer and professor of urban studies at the University of Chicago and a leading voice in urging the Supreme Court to declare local school taxes invalid, the per capita education expenditure per child in the predominately Negro area of Woodlawn in Chicago is about $600 a year. In suburban Winnetak, it is between $1,500 and $1,800 per child per year.

Similar discrepancies can be found everywhere in the country.

Other voices are urging a legislative rather than a judicial remedy. Famed educator James B. Conant recently shook up a meeting of the Education Commission of the States by proposing that the States take over total financial responsibility for public education. Officials in at least two states have joined in the call, reports the American School Board Journal.

Michigan's superintendent of education and the education commissioner of Massachusetts argue that elimination of local fiscal control over schools will end drastic differences in school support levels from one district to another and will solve some of the monumental education problems faced by poorer communities.

Another benefit would be uniform, statewide salaries for teachers, which would help eliminate the migration of teachers from poor districts, where they are more needed, to better-paying jobs in more affluent districts.

Still other observers point out that what impoverished school systems are in need of is not equality of treatment but preferential treatment. At the same time they fear that any "leveling" of schools, whether directed by state legislatures or by the courts, could meet the same kind of public resistance that desegregation and busing have met, despite the price all children may ultimately have to pay for that resistance.

Whether or not it goes as far as the Supreme Court, this matter of equality of education is alive and kicking and will continue to be for as far ahead as anyone can see.

Washington Merry Go Round

McCormack Indicates He'll Retire

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - In a maneuver to take the steam out of the drive to unseat him, speaker John McCormack has spread the word on Capitol Hill that he wants to serve only one more term and will retire from Congress in 1970.

However, this hasn't diminished the determination of 41-year-old Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., to oust the venerable speaker, who will be 77

Although few others believe the old man can be removed, Adams still intends to force a showdown on McCormack in the Democratic caucus at the beginning of the next Congress. If all 243 Democratic members are present, it will take a majority vote of 122 to unseat the speaker.

Before Adams began his campaign against McCormack, he telephoned the speaker and disclosed his plans.

"Naturally, I am upset to hear this, Brock," said McCormack. "I thought you were a friend of mine."

"I am your friend, and I want to continue being your friend, Mr. Speaker," replied Adams. "There's nothing personal at all in what I am going to do. Please understand that.

'Have you made up your mind definitely about this?" asked McCormack.

"Yes, sir, I have," said Adams.

"In that case, there is no reason for us to argue about it," said the speaker. "I can't stop you."

NOTE: Adams was still in diapers when McCormack came to Congress in 1928. Most insiders agree that the speaker will be kept in power by a coalition of committee chairmen, most of them old men like himself who don't want to upset the status quo and, therefore, are opposed to reforms.

-Alabama Probe Starts-

Our expose of liquor pay-offs to George Wallace's fund raisers has already produced both federal and state investigations.

This column charged that Wallace has been squeezing money out of the liquor industry to help finance his political campaigns. Payments of more than $138,000 were traced from a Birmingham brokerage firm to Robert Millsap, one of Wallace's chief fund raisers.

Looking Backward

NINETY YEARS AGO

From present indications the time is drawing near and cannot be far distant when Pearl River, the pride of our city which flows through the business district and across Ohio street, will cease to exist. The continued dry weather has been too much for this limpid stream, and it has almost lost its grip on this sublunary orb. It is sad. No more will the youthful lovers wander hand in hand along its mossy banks, linger beneath the shade trees which lean lovingly over as if longing to kiss the smiling, dimpled face of the gliding stream, or hear its low sweet murmur echoed in their own hearts. No more will the dreamy poet indicte a column and a half of unadulterated inspiration entitled: "An Ode to Pearl River." The silvery trout which flashed hither and thither in its depths, or basked in the sunshine as it penetrates to their haunts beneath the surface, will, alas, be seen no more forever. The artist who loved to linger here, his practiced eye drinking in the picturesque panorama spread before his enraptured vision — the gliding pleasure gondolas, the yachts dotting its surface looking like white-winged birds skimming from horizon to horizon, or the staunch ships bearing their precious cargo of merchandise from port to port will be attracted to the sport no

Beauteous Pearl River! Like a dream thou art fading away. But we have one consolation. The dead dogs and cats will have to be thrown somewhere

Documents in our possession show that the firm was splitting its liquor commissions with Millsap, although he played no visible role in liquor sales to Alabama's alcoholic beverage control board.

After Alabama Gov. Albert Brewer learned of our findings, he dispatched one of the state's top investigators, Ben Allen, to Bessemer, Ala., to investigate Millsap's operations. We will be happy to assist the state by furnishing documents or

Meanwhile, the Internal Revenue Service has opened an investigation into possible tax angles. The T-Men are also checking into charges that certain Wallace aides have pocketed contributions that were supposed to be spent on his campaigns. During his presidential campaign the greenbacks fluttered into Wallace headquarters like autumn leaves. His accounting of all the campaign cash, however, was

-Stokely May Move-

It now looks as if Stokely Carmichael, the black militant, is beating it out of the country before President-elect Nixon gets a chance to indict him.

Carmichael already has shipped all his furniture and belongings, including the carpets on the floors of his $70,000 Washington home, to the West African nation of Guinea.

Carmichael and his wife, the glamorous South African folk singer, Miriam Makeba, personally supervised the packing. There is every indication that they intend to follow.

During the early 1960s, Carmichael studied Marxism in Guinea, which is considered the most pro-Communist country in West Africa. He picked up many of his ideas on black power from Guinea's President Sekou Toure, who presented him with a long, flowing African robe. This has always been one of Carmichael's prize possessions.

The question of whether to indict Carmichael has been debated in our highest government councils. President Johnson wanted to act against Carmichael, who has preached both violation and sedition in the Negro ghettos. Over Hanoi radio, Carmichael also urged American soldiers to turn on their officers and to desert to the enemy.

Attorney General Ramsey Clark, however, argued that foreign witnesses who would come to the United States to testify against Carmichael would be hard to find in Communist countries. Recordings of Carmichael's broadcasts, of course, would be inadmissible.

He cautioned that an indictment of Carmichael might fail in court and lead to renewed public outrage over the alleged "leniency" of the federal judicial system. All that would be accomplished, he suggested, might be to make a martyr out of Carmichael in the ghettos.

Apparently, Carmichael is less confident that the new Nixon administration will hold back an indictment and isn't staying around to find out.

His departure should take some of the steam out of the violent and vociferous Black Panther Party which Carmichael heads.

Decline of the Cow

Chalk up one more victim of modern technology-the cow.

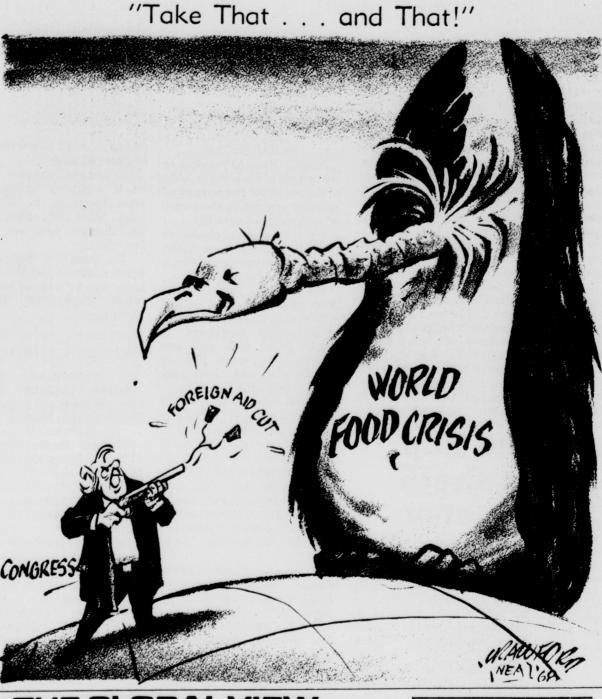

Milk sales are declining and sales of artificial milk products are on the rise. Millions of people no longer put milk or cream in their coffee; they use a vegetable substitute. The same goes for whipped dessert toppings. Eventually, most people will drink artificial milk instead of cow-type milk, predicts Organic Gardening. For one thing, a cholesterol-conscious public wants to avoid the fats natural milk contains, says the magazine. Others want to avoid calories or hitherto unsuspected allergies to milk protein. Well might the poet lament: "How now, brown cow?'

Less poetical but more to the point: "What now, Mr. Dairy Farmer?"

THE GLOBAL VIEW

NEW YORK (NEA) Spies are in the news again. The current series of espionage cases and epidemic of mysterious murders and suicides in West Germany is another reminder that Russia's net of secret agents has grown to mammoth proportions.

Technology has created unprecedented possibilities for espionage. But even in the age of electronics, computers and spy-satellites, no replacement has yet been found for the man who, for idealistic or purely mercenary reasons, continues to ply the hazardous cloak-and-dagger trade. In fact, like tax evasion, espionage is almost becoming a gentleman's crime. Sweden's Col. Wennerstrom, who spied for Moscow, and Russia's Col. Oleg Penkovsky, who performed similar chores for the United States, were highly respected officers and members of their countries' But none was more respected than West Germany's Rear Adm. Herman Luedke, who was found shot to death on Oct. 8. Until a month before his mysterious murder he was deputy chief of logistics at NATO's supreme military headquarters in Europe.

Luedke knew the secret location of NATO's 16,000 nuclear warheads. He not only knew but largely decided the location of NATO's food and ammunition dumps, spare parts and other logistical resources that would back up the West's forces in war.

Since there is hardly any doubt that the admiral was a Soviet spy, there is not much about the military layout of the Western defense system that the Russians do not know. Luedke's murder was preceded and followed by the suicide of five West German federal employes, including the deputy chief of Bonn's intelligence service.

Ever since a number of Czechoslovak senior intelligence officers escaped to the West, not a day has passed in the Bonn Federal Republic without disclosures of espionage cases. It is the Czechoslovakian defectors, embittered by Russia's invasion of their country, who are mainly responsible for the current intensified hunt for the Kremlin's secret agents in the West.

Some of the spy incidents are bizzare with comic opera overtones. Such was the revelation by the Bonn authorities that they had at last solved the mysterious disappearance of an American "Sidewinder" missile from a NATO depot in West Germany.

Stolen about a year ago, the 165-pound missile, it turns out, was simply loaded by three men on a wheelbarrow, dismantled in a passenger car and shipped to Moscow by

After the disclosure, a West German cartoonist depicted Soviet intelligence agents in Moscow, opening up an air freight crate and discovering Bonn's defense minister, Gerhard Schroeder, inside.

Cloak-and-daggers have existed even before Joshua sent his agents into Jericho. The current spy scare is sweeping not only West Germany but Italy, France, Britain, Austria and the United Nations as well.

Nor is spying a one-way street. For each spy who works for the Russians, there is at least one or more who spy for

No doubt, divided Germany is a particularly happy hunting ground for Communist spies. East and West Germans speak the same language and are generally undistinguishable. About 20 million West Germans have relatives in the east and some of them are blackmailed into spying for It is estimated that the Communists have about 5.000 agents operating in the Bonn Federal Republic. Helmut Schmidt, the Social Democratic parliamentary leader, complained recently that West Germany has became an

"El Dorado" for spies. But, after Britain's arch-traitor, Kim Philby, it is no use pointing a finger at West Germany alone. There are undetected and highly placed spies in every defense organi zation in the world.

Everybody, it seems, knows about everybody else. This in effect, is what Russia's deposed Premier Khrushchev once told Allen Dulles when he was chief of the American West opened the ace of spades and continued the suit on the principle of not giving the declarer any help. Ockie counted 10 top tricks and at first glance it appeared that he would have to bring home the heart suit. He had to locate the queen and decided to play a few diamonds just to see what would happen. The first dia-mond lead told him. The suit was not going to break.

Since East held all the diamonds Ockie decided to play West for the queen of hearts. He led his king of hearts, continued with the 10 and finessed. The finesse worked but East showed out so Ockie was up to 11 tricks only but he also perceived an automatic squeeze position. He cashed the remaining top diamonds, the last two spades, discarding a diamond, and finally the ace of hearts. East had to hold a diamond, whereupon Ockie chucked his last diamond. West had to hold the queen of hearts and Ockie spread his hand with the announcement, "The clubs are all good."

QUICK QUIZ

Q-Who holds the record for length of service in the U.S. Congress?

A-Carl T. Hayden of Arizona has served longer than any member of Congress. His House and Senate service covers a total of 56 years.

Q-Who was the first and only president of the United States to become Chief Justice?

A—William Howard Taft, appointed by President Warren Harding.

I keep watching the department store ads and none of the copywriters have done it. I've read the garden sections of the newspapers and none of the editors are going to do it. They simply refuse to take on the responsibility. So, I suppose it is up to me to announce it.

This is the season for pulling plastic geraniums from planters and window boxes and replacing them with plastic boxwood bushes. As for those persons who still have last spring's plastic tulips and hyacinths in, well, they are obviously hopeless and there is no point trying to tell them anything.

There are those who scoff at plastic gardeners and make spiteful remarks, such as, "Oh, you lazy thing!" However, a dedicated plastic gardener merely shrugs at this. He knows that although he may no longer sprain his back digging dahlia pits, he still has problems. Consider the work involved, for example, after a hot August sun melts your phlox and it runs all over a brick sidewalk.

The plastic gardener is accustomed to sneers. He is told, "You don't have the right idea. It's man against nature-it's a fight!" In answer to this, the plastic gardener only smiles a gentle smile, serene in his knowledge that he no longer has to fight. He has won his war.

This bit of information is for those who want the best of both kinds of gardening. If you really miss the bug problem, just visit a hobby shop, invest 39 cents in a bag of plastic beetles and stage a grand infestation of your plants. It surely does beat picking off real bugs and dropping them into a can of kerosene.

One eventually comes up against the man who classifies himself as A Real Dirt Gardener. Not only does he take delight in telling you how your plastic geraniums are not fading evenly, but, inevitably, he leans down, picks up a handful of dirt, rubs his thumb around in it and then lets it sift dramatically onto his shoes. "At heart I'm just a farmboy," he says his voice sliding into either an Iowa drawl or a clipped Maine accent. (It is a common belief among these dirt sifters that all farmers live in the states of Iowa and

Persons with a dirt-sifting compulsion do sometimes forget themselves. I mean, if they are inside the house, they will gouge their fingers into the potted fern in your living room and then not only do you have to listen to this kind of talk, you also have that mud to clean up off the rug.

Because I have a friend with this problem, I have come up with a solution. When the conversation veers to gardening, I steer him to my kitchen (under the pretext of showing him my strings of plastic peppers and garlics) and allow him to plunge his hand into a coffee can I have filled with plastic dirt. "Friable," he always says. I don't know about that, of course, but I can tell you that it sweeps well.

Thyroid Extract Not Weight Reducer

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q - Although I have a goiter, my thyroid i underactive and I am taking thyroid pills. Should also take iodine pills to keep my goiter small?

A — Most persons with a colloid-type goiter hav normal or nearly normal thyroid function. Th victim is usually given thyroid extract and iodin separately or in combination. When this treatment i started early in the course of the disease the goite usually disappears. The dosage of the drugs ma then be reduced but a small maintenance dos should be continued indefinitely.

Q - Can a large thyroid intake cause a nervou person who is overweight to lose wiehgt rapidly enough to bring on a nervous collapse? If a person has no goiter but needs thyroid, would it cause nervousness? Is this drug habit-forming?

A — Thyroid extract has long been discredited a a means of weight reduction because it is likely to cause extreme nervous tension. If a person has deficiency of thyroid hormone, the amount o thyroid extract he takes must be carefully regulated to prevent abnormal nervous tension. Thyroid extract, like insulin for diabetics, is a replacemen therapy. Its function is the restoration of norma metabolism. Thus, although it may have to be taken indefinitely, this is not true addiction.

Q - Are there different kinds of thyroid pills for goiter or to bring the blood pressure up? Are they given for arthritis?

A - There are several kinds of thyroic replacement pills. Although they may cause some elevation in the blood pressure that is not their main function. Some victims of thyroid deficiency have joint pains (not true arthritis) that are benefited by thyroid extract.

Q — What is Hasimoto's disease? Does it cause tremors or protruding eyes? Is it serious? A — Hashimoto's disease is chronic thyroiditis Fine tremors and protruding eyes occur in persons with an overactive thyroid. Since, in Hashimoto's disease, the thyroid function, which is normal at first, may drop, it would not cause these symptoms When treated with appropriate doses of thyroid extract the disease can be cured.

"If the situation were right, I would go back there and make another picture," said the towering, boyish-looking director. "I found the Hungarian people to be extremely friendly, and the film workers were eager and helpful. We received excellent cooperation all along the Frankenheimer and his partner, producer Edward Lewis, were sold on "The Fixer" as soon as they had read the Bernard Malamud novel in galley form. They had previously tried to transfer another Malamud book, "The Assistant," into the film medium, but were unable to acquire financing. It was no easy matter with "The Fixer," either "After I finished 'Grand Prix,' Eddie and I proposed 'The Fixer' to MGM; we were turned down," said Frankenheimer. "But then the president of MGM, Robert O'Brien, read the book and was sold on it. He said MGM would back the project if we could make it 'for a price'. Lewis and Frankenheimer agreed to do so, and they began searching for topography and cityscapes that would resemble 1916 Russia. They wanted to film inside Russia itself, but they were told "via the grapevine" that such a request would be denied. The reason: The Fixer" deals with anti-Semitism, which reportedly still exists in

'We figured if we got a turndown from Russia, that would scare off any of the satellite countries," said the director. "After looking at Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Hungary, as well as Yugoslavia and Austria, we decided that Hungary offered the best backgrounds. The deal was arranged through the Tower international organization headed by Cyrus Eaton.

Frankenheimer spent 100 days of filming on the picture, which stars Alan Bates, Dirk Bogarde and Elizabeth Hartman. "The Fixer" met O'Brien's stipulation "for a price." It was "something under two and a half million," a reasonable sum for a top production these days.

Jews Protest A Christmas Stamp Theme

NEW YORK (AP) - The American Jewish Congress has protested that the 1968 Christmas stamp issued by the U.S. Post Office violates the First Amendment guarantee of the separation of church and state.

The 6-cent stamp shows a detail from "The Annunciation"work by the 15th-century Flemish master, Jan van Eyck, depicting the Angel Gabriel telling the Virgin Mary she has been chosen to bear the infant

The AJC said Thursday in a letter to Postmaster General W. Marvin Watson that when Christmas stamps were first issued in 1962 they showed "relatively innocuous" designs such as holly wreaths.

But, the letter declared, the Van Eyck painting cele 'the dogma of the Virgin birth' and charged: "This amounts to government support of specific religious ideas even when those ideas are antithetical to the religious beliefs of others.

Eastern Division Title Caps NY Jets 'Turkey'

Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Jets got a lovely dessert with their Thanksgiving turkey-the American Football League's Eastern Division

The Jet coaches, players and their families gathered at Shea Stadium for the team's annual turkey dinner Thursday and between forkfuls, they watched Kansas City whip Houston 24-10, wiping out the Oilers' last chance to catch New York.

"I feel really great," said Coach Weeb Ewbank after the players doused him in champagne. The Jets cheered each Kansas City score and joined the Chiefs' fans in the countdown of the final seconds before popping the corks.

Meanwhile, the Chiefs remained tied for the Western Division lead with Oakland which just got by Buffalo, 13-10. Both the Raiders and Kansas City are 10-2 with two games remaining. On Sunday, Miami is at New York, Cincinnati at Boston and San Diego at Denver.

In the National League, Philadelphia ended an 11-game losing streak and jeopardized its chances at the No. 1 collegiate draft pick, by shutting out Detroit 12-0, and Dallas tripped Washington 29-20

Len Dawson could have won an Emmy from the Jets for the way he performed on their television screen against the Oilers. The Kansas City quarterback picked Houston's secondary apart, hurling three long touchdown passes and completing 17 of 23 attempts for 253 yards. He hit 10 in a row over one stretch.

Dawson found Frank Pitts with TD tosses of 33 and 43 yards and connected with Mike Garrett for a 37-yarder.

POLLY'S POINTERS One Has a Problem; One Has an Answer By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY-I am 22, have been married three years and have an 18-month-old son. I enjoy being a housewife and mother but sometimes feel like a failure at getting my housework done efficiently. I feel so frustrated as I try to wash, cook, bake, sew, iron, water the yard, do the dishes, mop and vacuum, run errands—all this on some sort of a weekly schedule to keep things livable and pleasant for my family and guests. I am sure there must be others who feel this way. Perhaps someone could give me a solution in the way of a weekly, bi-weekly or monthly schedule.

Polly, thank you so much for a helpful column. Do you have any books on housekeeping hints?-

DEAR FRANCES-I am sure there are many young, and not so young, homemakers who must feel as you do. We hope to hear from some who have learned along the way. I can imagine the frustrated feelings you have. We have all had it at one time or another. Often we try to do too much, have to resort to short cuts and leave the more "creative" things until our children are older. I do have a paperback book, "Polly's Homemaking Pointers," which can be bought on many bookstands or order through your local newspaper.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have my housework all done by 8 in the morning. Maybe others would like to try my system. The children make their own beds and straighten their rooms before going to school. I only mop and wax the floors once a week. The children's clothes are laid out at night, and baths are taken then so there is no early morning scramble. When they leave for school at 7.220 Letert ing scramble. When they leave for school at 7:30 I start my housework. By 8 my bed is made, dishes washed. floors swept, living room dusted and straightened. Every-one cleans up after himself in the bathroom. My three children are all under nine.

I have the rest of the day to sew or do as I want. I am room mother at school for each of the children. I make all our clothes except the boys' pants, sometimes 10 or 12 outfits a week. One day a week is for heavy cleaning. I iron as I dry the clothes each day, about 30 minutes. Don't let work pile up, don't let things get mussed and you do not have to spend all day cleaning. It is a favor to them to teach your children to be next and you have more time. to teach your children to be neat and you have more time to enjoy them.-C. G. S.

CORVAIR 4-dr.

$89 §125 CAR CITY BRYANT MOTOR CO.

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you took a strong stand against wife-spanking. Why? A columnist with your knowledge of psychology should know that women respect and admire men who assert their maleness. It took two divorces before I learned how to handle females.

I tried to reason with my first two wives. I spent hours arguing before I realized they were brainless donkeys. My brilliant logic was wasted on My third marriage is much better. The very first time we had an argument I turned my wife over my knee and gave her a good, sound spanking. "When you behave like a child," I told her, "you will be treated like a child." Since that time I haven't had too much trouble. I've had to give her an occasional spanking, but nothing like the first one.

If more men tried it there would be fewer divorces in this country. Why don't you tell them so? — IN CHARGE

Dear In: If more men tried it there would be fewer men in this country. This might come as a surprise to you, Bub, but a great many women would not tolerate such degrading treatment.

And now will you answer a question for me? How did a man with such brilliant logic wind up married to two brainless donkeys?

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't print my initials or my town. If the guys knew I was writing to you they'd die laughing.

I am 17 years old and going steady with a great little chick. The only problem is she's got this thing about the phone. She wants me to call her every night at nine when we aren't together. I don't mind calling but I can't get her off the horn. She has a phone of her own and can talk all night, but my ma gets mad when I tie up our phone too long.

What can a guy do about a girl who wants to yak forever? CAULIFLOWER EARS

Dear Ears: The next time your doll tries for permanent possession of the Bell trophy, tell her your ma is on the warpath and you've come up with a solution to insure domestic tranquility. Place an alarm clock by the phone. Set it for 15 minutes. That's long enough to get everything said. When the alarm goes off, say good-bye - and go.

Brush Fires Take a Toll

SYDNEY (AP) - Five men are dead, seven are missing and about 200 injured in midsummer bushfires that caused millions of dollars worth of damage within a 50-mile radius of Sydney in the past two days. The fire danger diminished in Sydney's outer suburbs today as the wind abated and temperatures dropped 20 degrees from Thursday's high of 90.

Isolated fires still burned in the Blue Mountains 50 miles west of Sydney but they were reported under control.

A thousand firefighters including professionals, volunteers and soldiers stood by to prevent a recurrance of Thursday's disaster when flames destroyed 150 houses, shops, churches and other buildings

Miss Brodie Meets Her Master

"WE DIDN'T WANT IT TO END," says Zoe Caldwell, recalling her first exposure to the upcoming television special, The Secret of Michelangelo: Every Man's Dream. Miss Caldwell provides the female voices for the narration; Christopher Plummer, the male voices.

By JOAN CROSBY NEA Entertainment Editor

NEWYORK-(NEA)-Michelangelo, dead all these many years, nevertheless man aged to change Zoe Caldwell's outlook on life.

It happened when the Australian actress was asked by producer Milton Fruchtman if she would supply all the female voices for his ABC-TV special, The Secret of Michelangelo: Every Man's Dream, to be seen on

At the time, Zoe and Christopher Plummer, who supplies the men's voices for the show, were appearing at the Stratfort (Ont.) Shakespeare Festival.

"Milton asked us if we would view the film, which was in a rough form and had absolutely no sound track," Zoe said in her velvet-rich voice. "We went into town one morning and entered a theater where they were playing '101 Dalmatians' or something like that. We sat slumped in our seats and the film about Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel began. The most incredible thing happened. We didn't want it to end. When it was over, we went out in the street and it seemed as if all the townsfolk had suddenly taken on a beauty. It's as though, somewhere in the Sistine Chapel, is every kind of face you can run into on the street. So instead of looking at some-one and saying, 'God, what an ugly face,' I looked and thought, 'What a classic Fruchtman says Zoe provides a dozen different voices during the narration, but she says she only heard two. Zoe is an unusual actress, completely without ego. Based on her talent, she might have the world's largest ego if she were so inclined. But she views life, and herself, with humor.

She won a Tony Award for her magnificent portrayal on Broadway of the passionate Scottish schoolteacher in "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie." In her role she has a gliding walk, a way of playing with the cuff on her sleeve, and an affected manner of speech, all of which add up to the feeling of an outwardly cool, but inwardly seething woman.

Off stage she is nothing like Jean Brodie. "When people hear that Robert Whitehead married me (he's whitehead married me (ne's the producer of the play), and the y don't know me, they get quite a shock when they see me in the play and think, 'My, what did old Bob marry?' They are quite relieved when they meet me.

"The day after Robert and I got married, he had a business trip he had to make to California. People would ask ful to a lesser actress. She had to do her narration for the Michelangelo show twice.

"I flunked my first course. I had been suffering with flu, but Milton had brought a crew to Canada and I decided to go through with it. I had a—well, I couldn't speak, which is a good way of put-ting it. But I wrapped myself in cotton wool-Chris didn't, but he's not a cotton wool sort of chap-and we got in the limousine to drive to Toronto. We went to din-ner and I didn't smoke or have anything harsh to drink or eat. Chris smoked and ate harsh foods. I didn't talk, either, but Chris did. Then I went to bed and drank honey and tea and took aspirin. The next day my voice seemed all right and I thought, 'Oh, Zoe, you have been marvelous, a complete Goody Two-Shoes and it does pay off.' We did the narration.

"Then I got back to New York and Milton called me and said, very apologetically, Zoe, we have to ask you to do the narration again.' It served me right, I was such a Goody Two-Shoes. It was a great lesson in humility.'

DUMMY SPEAKS words of wisdom in the hands of the Rev. Donald Churchman, who uses ventriloquism to communicate to children at his church in Portsmouth, England. The pastor saw a ventriloquist act a year ago and decided this would be an ideal way to catch the imagination of young members of his flock.

Another Explosion On Offer Rocks a Coal Mine By Adams

MANNINGTON, W. Va. (AP) Another explosion thundered through the deep coal mine today where 78 men have been trapped for more than a week. Flames and smoke spewed from one of the big mine's entrances. Company spokesmen termed the 2:28 a.m. blast a "major explosion." It was the 15th to wrack Mountaineer Coal Co. No. 9 mine since the first blast trapped the men early on Nov. 20. The other 21 men on the shift with them escaped

The explosion this morning was another setback in the long rescue move to reach the 78 with whom there has been no contact since they were entombed. Fear of explosions has prevented more search teams from probing into the mine where an intense fire deep in its pits rages uncontrolled.

The eruption today was at the Mahan shaft where the last blast occurred on Tuesday afternoon. Company spokesmen said at that time it did not surprise them since the Mahan and Llewellyn shafts-site of the first explosions-were "like two big smokestacks with the fire between them" The blast today made any Thanksgiving plans for those who are waiting word of husbands and fathers even more gloomy

President John Corcoran of Consolidation Coal Co., parent firm of Mountaineer, which operates the mine, has said Wednesday that "the situation isn't terribly optimistic" for the trapped men. Corcoran and other search officials feared there would be more explosions.

Corcoran said air samples taken from holes bored into the mine indicated the atmosphere below was "too severe for humans to survive.

The samples, Corcoran said, showed the methane level to be five times greater than human survival limits and the carbon monoxide level 50 times great-

Despite the almost hopeless outlook, Corcoran declined to comment on any decision to seal the mine-closing all entrances, portals and air shafts to extinguish the fire.

Such a move would also cut off oxygen to anyone in the

Have We Acted?

Americans, as a nation and as individuals, need not look far for specific reasons to be thankful at this moment in our history.

They can be found in two issues of preeminent national importance, both of which can tell us much more of the real nature of blessings, public and private, than the customary editorial platitudes on our well-being and the prospects of even better to come if only we keep the faith.

We are thinking of the skin-of-our-teeth presidential election and of Vietnam.

From the first, we have emerged with our political processes intact, if shaken, escaping the constitutional crisis that threatened had not these processes by great good fortune produced a certified victor. For this, we can be very thankful

As for the second, there is at long last the barest glimmer of hope that an agony seemingly unending may be approaching, if haltingly, a conclusion.

The connection and, for this occasion, the significance lie in the roles action and inaction have played in the two developments.

If there is hope in Vietnam, it is because of our action, because of the steps, small and hesitant though they may often seem, that we are taking toward creation of the conditions which permit a conclusion short of annihilation of either side.

In the election, we have less cause to thank our actions for averting crisis than to blame our inaction for having made it an ominous possibility. By failing to overhaul a long-outmoded electoral system, we have been inviting disaster for generations. There could be no better way of offering thanks for deliverance at this time than moving now toward a constitutional amendment spelling out a more direct, democratic and decisive procedure for electing a president.

In public affairs and in private lives, blessings are rarely undeserved. If we wish to be in a position to count any, we should ask ourselves what we have done to bring them about. Have we acted? What more do we have it in our power to do to ensure our own well-being?

It has all been said before, long ago and much more succinctly:

God helps those who help themselves.

New Nixon Has Discovered Art

On November 25, 1968, the food and drug administration let it be known that now it is investigating the question of health risks to those who consume artificial sweeteners.

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON WASHINGTON - It may surprise the wives of certain American ambassadors living abroad, but

Richard Nixon has now gone in for art. Forty-eight hours after he was elected President, he asked that the National Collection of Fine Arts decorate his temporary offices in Washington with modern American paintings. President Johnson has allocated a suite of offices in the building known as FOB 7, a new red brick structure behind the Court of Claims, next to the old Decatur House and just around the corner from Lafayette Square. There President-elect Nixon found 10 landscapes ready and waiting for him after he lunched with LBJ on Tuesday.

Reason why American diplomatic wives will be surprised is that Nixon has made caustic comment regarding paintings in American embassies abroad.

Donald I. McClelland of the National Collection of Fine Arts was careful in gathering the paintings for Nixon's brusque comment about art in American embassies abroad, he had the idea that the 10 pictures for Nixon should be very American. Perhaps he remembered that Nixon had once been a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

'What I've collected are chiefly landscapes," Mr. McClelland explained, "Painted by American artists from all walks of life.

'There is one by a Negro, one by a Russian-American, and one by a Japanese-American.

-Teddy vs. Muskie-It looks as if Sen. Teddy Kennedy has already started running for President. As early as Wednesday morning, Nov. 6, when most politicians were trying to get some sleep, Teddy was on the long-distance telephone congratulating various key congressmen on their re-election.

Some of them had been up all night and had gone to bed. Teddy was not inconsiderate. He did not wake them up. If they were asleep, he sent telgrams.

To John Brademas of South Bend, Ind., an older congressman, Teddy sent this wire: "Wish to be one of the first to congratulate you on what I know will be a great victory today. You have waged a splendid campaign, and I was proud to have been able to play a small part in your effort. I look forward to serving with you in the 91st Congress. Other messages were similar.

Normally, Muski would be the heir apparent to become a candidate in 1972, first because of the excellent impression he made, and second as a reward for arduous campaigning. However, if Teddy Kennedy challenges him, as now seems likely, the Democratic party may be split wide open again in a race between two New Englanders, two Catholics, and two men who are the son and great-grandson of immigrants.

-Nixon Blitz-

The Johnson administration has been so anxious to cooperate with the new President-elect that 24hour notice was given to vacate 11 rooms on the first floor of the State Department to make room for Nixonites who would move in to take over foreign affairs in January.

Some of the rooms were then unoccupied, but four were occupied by high-up State Department officials. On Thursday, Nov. 7, they were told to be out by 9 o'clock the next morning. They moved into cubbyhole offices that afternoon.

At 9 Friday morning, painters arrived to repaint the 17 Nixon rooms. They kept working over the weekend. Painters normally receive double time pay for weekend work, but a State Department spokesman claimed this was not the case for this particular weekend job for Nixon. New draperies are also being installed.

Despite the rush job, only a handful of the rooms have been occupied as of this writing.

New Americans

By CYRENE DEAR

THE WHITE HOUSE — "Welcome to your house and to your country" were the words of Mrs. Lyndon Johnson as she greeted 54 new Americans. representing almost as many nations, taking the oath of allegiance in the East Room. On November 22nd (the fifth anniversary of President Kennedy's death) this historic room was transformed into the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, complete with a robed judge, the chairman of the Naturalization Ceremonies Committee of the District's Bar Association and other court personnel

Mrs. Johnson, in her welcoming address, echoed the plea of the lady lawyer Chairman of the Naturalization Ceremonies Committee when she urged the new citizens to be "patient with America." She said, "All Americans are descendants of immigrants, and the late President Kennedy said, "We are a nation of immigrants,' so let us join together, build together and look at the good things in America.'

This was a very moving ceremony as each petitioner renounced his homeland and promised to bear arms in defense of this country if called upon to do so. It is a serious step, and as they declared the oath together in the presence of the President and Mrs. Johnson there were tears in many eyes. The President and his lady greeted each new citizen personally and many lingered in the rotunda as the Marine Band played familiar patriotic music.

Mrs. Johnson left immediately after the ceremony for her last "Discover America" tour. When she addressed the new citizens she said she was going to New Orleans to see a recent development in education, to Cape Kennedy to view the instruments used in outer space, to Denver, Colorado to visit a neighborhood health center, and finally to share in the wonders of the new California redwoods.

Q - We're going to a benefit dinner for a charitable organization. Won't this cost be deductible?

A - The cost of the tickets will be deductible to the extent it exceeds the value of the food and entertainment you receive. If the value of the meal and entertainment is not indicated on the tickets, the sponsors of the event should be able to tell you.

Q - Last year's medical expenses don't add up to 3 percent of my income. Does that mean I can't use the new provision that allows you to deduct one-half of your medical insurance premiums?

A - You may deduct one-half of your medical insurance premiums up to the maximum of $150 even though your other medical expenses do not exceed the 3 percent income limitation. However, to take this deduction you must itemize all your other deductions such as taxes, contributions, and interest expenses. You can't deduct your medical insurance premiums if you take the standard deduction.

A Daily Experience

By DAVID POLING

Albert Schweitzer once said that he had never shown enough thanks. There were so many people who had helped him along the way. Too often he had neglected to be timely and personal in his thanks.

Thanksgiving should be, for the thoughtful and sensitive, a daily experience. We are so easily distracted by the calamities and uncertainties of our day that we fail to see the joy and brilliance of life.

With so much anxiety and defeat in that tentative New England housing develop-ment, circled by dark forests, cold winters, and unpredictable Indians, we marvel that the first Thanksgiving even came off. Yet, they offered thanks to God for his goodness and greatness. We all live in that tradition.

Here we are in one of the most upsetting times of our national life. The divisions of the country are much more than geography or region. The angry ghetto, the alienated youth, the pickets this autumn in the schoolyards of New York and the grape kingdoms of California, are only a part of the general uneasiness. Perhaps that is all the more reason and pur-pose of a day of Thanksgiving.

For this holiday is nothing if it cannot suspend our aggravations, silence our complaints, mute the shrill critic, and turn off the rebel yell long enough to see the generous, even lavish, gifts of the Creator. Even to the unjust, the undeserving, the UN-THANKING, the rain does fall and the harvest does ap-

New York City buried 1,000 after the summer draft riots. Abraham Lincoln issued a Thanksgiving proclamation that expressed his confidence in the outcome.

"Needful diversions of wealth and of strength from the fields of peaceful industry to the national defense have not arrested the plow, the shuttle, or the ship; the ax has enlarged the borders of our settlements, and the mines, as well of iron and coal as of the precious metals, have yielded even more abundantly than here-

"No human counsel hath devised, nor hath any mortal hand worked out these great things. They are the gracious gifts of the most high God.

"It has seemed to me fit and proper that they should be solemnly, reverently, and gratefully acknowledged as with one heart and one voice by the whole American people. I do, therefore, invite my fellow-citizens in every part of the United States . . . to set apart and observe the last Thursday of November next as a day of thanksgiving and praise to our bene-ficent Father."

Thanksgiving provides the formal date to observe these events, people, and ideas in the world that often go unnoticed. For Lincoln, it meant the recognition of God's abundance during man's adversity. For Schweitzer, in his "Memoirs of Childhood and Youth," it must be a constant effort of appreciation and acknowledgement:

"I am stirred by the thought of the number of people whom I have to thank for what they gave me or what they were to me. At

Youth is such a receiving time, a getting period, that thankfulness is lost in the exuberance of life. Larry James, the 21-year-old gold medal sprinter on the U.S. Olympic team in Mexico City, flashed to the fastest hundred that he had ever run. With all the fame and honor that accompanies such a feat, he told a White Plains, N.Y., homecoming that so much was owed to his mother, his church, his school, his coaches, in making this performance possi-

His Thanksgiving was incomplete unless it was shared.

There is one other role for Thanksgiving to play in our lives—celebration. This is too absent in our split-level society with its frozen turkeys, toys every Saturday, and movies every night.

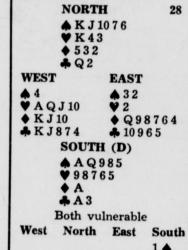

Celebrations should accompany accomplishments, victory, and deliverance. And we should not have to wait until a war is settled or a New Year's Eve or a wedding reception to let the good times roll. Over in the Virgin Islands they celebrate Thanksgiving on Oct. 25—the official end of the hurricane season!

But the best Thanksgiving of all comes from a sense of trust in the ways of God. In one of Sister Corita's posters I found the text for today:

to believe in God is to know that all the rules will be fair and that there wonderful surprises.

South's Loser

Here is a hand played some years ago by Charles Solomon of Philadelphia.

North's jump to three spades was a deliberate overbid. It effectively kept East out of the bidding and Charley decided that his hand was worth a game try.

West opened the ace of hearts and continued with the 10. Most players would have gone up with dummy's king whereupon East would have trumped. Then East would have decided that his partner's 10 spot lead was a suit preference signal calling for the lowest suit and returned a club. There would be no way to avoid losing a club and another heart.

Charley found a simple way to make sure of his contract. He just let the 10 of hearts hold. He would have looked sort of silly had East produced the queen or jack and continued by giving West a heart ruff, but he would look silly on his way to the bank since all he would have given away would have been an overtrick.

After Charley ducked the best East could do was to give his partner a ruff with a third heart lead. East returned a club but the defense was through taking tricks.

Charley rose with his ace, drew trumps, led out a fourth heart and ruffed it in dummy. He returned to his hand with the ace of diamonds, discarded dummy's queen of clubs on the fifth and last heart and made the rest of the tricks with a cross ruff.

I'd like to see one of them cope with a Father-Daughter banquet. Or have a child turn on them with resentment because there is no father in the house.

For comedy relief, we could have our star-let's call her Irene-invited to a dinner party. She had to be asked because she and dear old Harry were part of the crowd for years and friends have to be sympathetic, don't they? Of course, having her does make the seating arrangement difficult. And, it is rather embarrassing the way all Irene's old friends clutch at their husbands when she walks in alone. Well, not all of them. Seemingly, the wives of the very dullest men are the most defensive here. But, the real problem is that Irene walks in ALONE. As though she doesn't understand that the world is set up on a couples-basis.

Script for Widow

This is the Year of the Widows on television and I have been watching the programs starring Doris Day, Diahann Carroll,

Hope Lange and Lucille Ball just to see how they would handle the problems of widow-

Alas, I should have known they would not be confronted with any of the real problems.

Diahann Carroll has had to face up to some minor racism but there's nothing she can't handle with a snap of the fingers. Miss Ball and her teen-agers have only minor conflicts with each other and apparently none with the outside world. Doris Day, equipped with the outside world. Don's Day, equipped with two adorable sons, is as sweet as ever and Hope Lange types away at her job as a writer and copes beautifully with the help of children, maid/companion and fluffy dog.

Not only has Irene suddenly, in the eyes of her best friends, become a femme fatale the minute the funeral flowers faded, but she also is a nuisance. It isn't really anything she DOES. It is just that one feels sort of responsible for her.

And, there are times when she actually resents it! She seems to think it rude and peculiar when a friend asks questions about how much money Harry had in insurance. Think how strangely she reacted when asked if she really needed to buy that new winter coat! Of course, one wouldn't have thought of asking such a personal question last winter, but that was BEFORE and things have CHANGED.

As the season goes on, Irene might find herself weighing her words carefully on our show. She will not dare tell that hilarious story about the cat pulling down the window shade in the dining room because she will know the reaction of some listeners will be, "Irene wants my husband to come over and fix that window and he won't do a thing for

Our star can give her friends a change of pace-if she cares to bother with it. She can laugh and perhaps enjoy an hour at a party so her companions can express their How Could You! feelings. Or, she can act a bit tired and depressed. That will give them opportunity to dust off their pep talks. They can tell her how LIFE GOES ON and that she must snap out of it!

Hyperthyroidism Hard to Cure in Some

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — Ten years ago my wife was operated on for an overactive thyroid. Recently she was examined and found to be hyperthyroid again. What is the cause and the prognosis?

A - In a few persons it is hard to cure hyperthyroidism permanently. If not quite enough thyroid is removed the overactivity may return but if too much is removed thyroid deficiency may develop. In your wife's case, the use of thyroid suppressing drugs may be the answer or she may need another operation to remove some more of her

Q - What is meant by "toxic goiter" and "overactive thyroid?" Is is possible to have both? Is an operation always nnecessary?

A — Toxic goiter, hyperthyroidism and overactive thyroid are synonymous terms. Although drugs can be used to control this disease the best results in most cases are obtained by surgical removal of part

Q - I am a woman, 62. Six months ago my thyroid was removed. Following the operation I became hoarse and was told this would clear up in three or four weeks. Now, six months later, I am still hoarse. The doctor says there is no malignancy. What could cause the hoarseness?

A - Hoarsensss following partial removal of the thyroid is the result of injury to the laryngeal nerve, which lies very close to the thyroid. Whether the damage is temporary or permanent would depend on the extent of the injury.

Q - I feel tired all the time. Would thyroid pills help me or would vitamins be better?

A — There are several causes for chronic fatigue. A thyroid deficiency is only one of them and is the only one thyroid extract would benefit. Similarly, a vitamin preparation would help only if you are suffering from a lack of vitamins in your diet.

Q - I am taking thryoid for a slow pulse and tired feeling and Librium for my nerves. Can I take both drugs indefinitely?

A - Thyroid can be taken indefinitely if the dosage is adjusted to your need and a periodic check is made to determine the extent of your deficiency. The dose of chlordiazepoxide (Librium) should be the smallest one needed to give the desired effect. Although many persons take it for prolonged periods, I have always advised against such use of this and other tranquilizers. Anyone who has taken this drug regularly for more than five months should be weaned away from it very gradually. Otherwise convulsions may occur.

Film on Shower Doors Creates Her Problem

By POLLY CRAMER

™Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Our shower has sliding plastic doors. They always seem to be covered with a film, even though they are cleaned regularly and wiped after each use. I have tried all types of window cleaners, vinegar and ammonia. I hope someone can tell me about a satisfactory cleaner.—MARY W.

DEAR POLLY-I am answering Edna, who has a mildewed tile floor in her den and whose floor man told her the floor was sweating from the bottom. I had a similar problem. My walls and windows sweat so badly they were always full of mildew. A friend suggested that we put Plio-film under the house to cover the ground, wall to wall. We did and it stopped the trouble. Her son had a new home and put cement under the house. This did not help, but Pliofilm stopped his house from sweating, too. I feel sure it is dampness coming up from underneath that causes this.—LUCILLE

DEAR READERS—A U.S. government bulletin on mildew suggests that "In crawl spaces under houses, spread a layer of moisture-barrier material over the soil under the building. Heavy roofing paper or polyethylene plastic film can be used."—POLLY

DEAR POLLY-We had a mildewed floor, so we bought a dehumidifier and put it in the basement. After a few weeks, the spots became light. Set the dehumidifier on "Normal."—AMY

DEAR POLLY-When you purchase a new box of face powder, do not remove the protective paper covering from the box opening but puncture it all over with a pin. Put top back on, tap the bottom of the box until enough powder falls on the cover. Keep the box stored upside down and this way you do not waste any of your expensive powder and you avoid spills. -KATHLEEN

Charges Withdrawn By Board

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Board of Police Commissioners withdrew charges Wednesday against two St. Louis police detectives suspended for allegedly using excessive force to subdue two black militants in a police station clash.

Detective Sgt. William Fitzgerald and Detective Rudolph Oehlert were suspended as a result of a Sept. 13 fight with militants Charles Koen and Leon Dent, members of a group called the Black Liberators.

The Police Board also withdrew reprimands handed four other officers in connection with the fight.

The Board said, however, the charges could be reinstated.

Man Shot While On An Outing

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) -A lawyer was shot to death from ambush Wednesday night while on an outing with his wife on farm property they own in Wyandotte County.

Billy Dean Yockey, 35, of Kansas City, Kan., was hit once in the chest while seated in a chair in a ravine where he and his wife ate a snack by latern

His wife Shirley, told officers she neither saw the gunman nor heard the shot.

Dr. Edgar P. Sereres, corner, said the bullet apparently was fired from a high-powered rifle at considerable distance. He said the bullet emerged from Yockev's back.

Mrs. Yockey said her husband lurched forward and exclaimed, "I'm shot!" She dropped to the ground and extinguished the latern. She said he told her to get help, so she ran to a neighboring farm and called police. Police found Yockey lying face down behind the chair.

Yockey is survived by two sons and a daughter, of Tucson, Ariz.; his father, Joe Yockey Sr., Ottawa, Kan; his mother, Mrs. Edna R. Yockey of Topeka; two brothers, Wendell of Topeka, and Joe, Jr., of Ottawa, and a sister, Mrs. George Harris, Elko, Nev.

Believe Cleaver Has Fled

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Officials say they believe Eldridge Cleaver may have fled the country to avoid returning to prison despite his statements that he would not.

An all-points arrest bulletin was issued Wednesday for the 33-year-old Black Panther information minister after he failed to surrender as a parole violator and return to prison.

Cleaver was to report at 9 a.m. Wednesday to his parole officer at the State Building in downtown San Francisco. His wifeKathleen and his attorney, Charles R. Garry, appeared and stated they didn't know where In his last contact with the press, Saturday in San Francisco, Cleaver told a reporter he would "rather be shot down in the street than go back" to prison because he was afraid he never would be freed again. 'I could leave the country but the people who are after me don't deserve that and it sets a bad example," he added.

However, the California Department of Corrections said it received word that Cleaver might have received underground aid to flee the country. Cleaver was convicted in Los Angeles in 1958 of assault with intent to kill and assault with a deadly weapon and sentenced to 13 years in prison. He was paroled in 1966.

The parole was revoked after Cleaver was charged with assault to commit murder and assault with a deadly weapon after a shooting incident with Oakland police last April in which the Black Panther treasurer, Bobby Hutton, 17, was killed.

ing appeals of state agencies which felt they should have more money than the budget director, John C. Vaughn, had recommended.

An increase of a cent on the dollar for the sales tax, the governor said, would produce about $100 million for a full year, but the increase could not become effective until next Oct. 13 so it would be in effect only for the period from then until the end of the fiscal year. Since sales tax collections are made on a three-month basis, the first payments would be received in January and the second in April.
